(b) No formal all-India review of the working of Lok Adalats has been done. However, as the Lok Adalats are often attended by the Executive Chairman and other officers of the Committee for Implementing Legal Aid Schemes, there is a constant feed-back regarding the functioning and achievements of Lok Adalats being held in various parts of the country.

(c) Efforts to organise Lok Adalats in States where the Legal Aid Programmes have not taken firm roots have met with considerable success. Also, the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987 provides for a statutory base to the Lok Adalats and shall confer any of the powers of a court, on Lok Adalats.
